NISSEN energy partners with CoreCapital for its next phase of growth

NISSEN energy is entering into a partnership with CoreCapital to strengthen the business and further accelerate growth. CEO Michael B. Nissen, COO Rasmus Vind Ebbesen and CFO Rune Stampe will continue as co-owners and in their current roles and, together with the entire NISSEN team and CoreCapital, will drive the next stage of the journey.

NISSEN energy is headquartered in Skanderborg and has approximately 30 employees. The company supplies and services gas engines for wastewater treatment plants and has recently expanded into gas upgrading systems for biogas plants. NISSEN energy delivers complete energy solutions to customers in Denmark and selected international markets, including Sweden, Norway, the USA and Canada, combining project deliveries with service agreements and long-standing customer relationships.

Together with the management team, CoreCapital will work to maintain and expand NISSEN energy's strong position within wastewater treatment plants – both in Denmark and internationally – while further developing the business within gas upgrading systems and strengthening the service organization. As an active owner, CoreCapital contributes strategic guidance, capital and a network within the green energy sector.

Michael Nissen, CEO, says:

> "This is an important milestone for NISSEN energy. Our customers can count on the same team and the same service as always. At the same time, we gain partners with capital, network and experience to help us develop the business and our presence abroad. CoreCapital understands our industry and will work with us to build on what we have created."

John Agerholm is the partner responsible for the investment at CoreCapital and will join the Board of Directors, where he will play an active role in the strategic development of the company.
John Agerholm, Partner at CoreCapital, says:

> "NISSEN energy is a highly regarded company with a strong team and close customer relationships. As an active owner, we will work closely with management and contribute capital, guidance and our network as NISSEN energy continues to grow – without changing what already works well."
